JS 28:41 min 1998 Clearvue Digital

Discusses the destructive—and even deadly—consequences of teen binge drinking. Speaking with adolescents who do and do not drink about their perceptions, experiences, and fears about drinking, this program looks at how youth culture encourages alcohol abuse and stresses that throwing up, passing out, and hangovers resulting from drinking are signs of serious bodily damage, not "initiation rites." A doctor details the signs and symptoms of alcohol poisoning, emphasizing the effects shots and binge drinking have on the brain, and families and friends touched by drunk driving accidents reveal the pain and heartache of losing a loved one to poor judgment. The presentation ends with an analysis of how mixing alcohol with drugs, like Valium and marijuana, and smoking can result in tragedy, and identifies the impact alcoholism can have on relationships and health.
